Alan Pepin

Alan Pepin is both an artist and designer. Across his creative work, he is drawn to clean lines and strong forms, and the relationships between elements. Mixing a traditional aesthetic with a modern perspective, his furniture and lighting design share the warmth and simplicity of his photography and painting.

He began his design career in the late 90's at Marshall Field's, beginning with private brands, such as Frank Lloyd Wright Gallery, Isabelle de Borchgrave, Tracy Porter and Thomas O'Brien. He continued with Target and again with Thomas O'Brien Vintage Modern, before founding his own studio, Red Dog Run Design in 2005.

Imbrium

The inspiration for the Imbrium collection arises from water, and the almost imperceptible architecture of falling droplets of rain. The Latin meaning of the word Imbrium is, "of rain." Finished in silver leaf or brushed copper, with seeded crystal spheres.

The Una Collection is an observation of the union of form and light. A harmonious connection in the simplest form, angle cut crystals lend movement and direction as each ring encircles the other. The Latin word Una meaning "in one, together." Finished in polished nickel.

The Cuspis collection is a strong yet simple visual study of falling light as it travels through crystal. Bold and masculine, it comes alive with its undulating geometric reflections. Cuspis is defined as "pointed end" in it's original Latin. Finished in antique brushed copper with large scale hexagonal crystal rods.

Brett Curtin

Brett Curtin has been designing lighting, furniture and other home decor products since 1998 when he began with Pottery Barn. He has since designed for Neiman Marcus and Crate and Barrel. He draws his inspiration from sculpture, architecture and well crafted designs.

The spherical shapes in the Sephera family are inspired by mid-century pendant lights. The design gives a nod to retro design while feeling fresh and updated. The classic form allows the pendants to be at home in a modern, classic or eclectic environment.

The Struttura collection is inspired by the simple forms in modern architecture. Simple geometric forms remain a strong trend in home decor as do forms within forms. The overall feel of simplicity in the design of this family speaks to the desire for simplicity in the lives and homes of American consumers.

Deborah Shavlik

Skilled in a range of style periods and having an inherent sensitivity to different materials as well as finding beauty and inspiration in fine art, architecture and product design has led to a breadth of work carried in showrooms, retail stores and was awarded in the Lighting for Tomorrow competition 2008.

Based in Brooklyn, NY she devotes time to lighting design and her line of home accents Studio DKS which has been carried by numerous retail stores and museum shops including ABC Carpet and Home, Barneys and Guggenheim Museum.

Combining traditional design elements with the modern styling of asymmetrical rings and a cascading fall of crystals, the Cascade series is a playful yet sophisticated design accent. Both the dynamic frame and wispy tendrils of crystals create the illusion of movement, and cut crystal details throughout the fixture catch the light to bring the entire piece to life.

Tracy Koziol

Tracy Koziol works to achieve function, proportion and sophistication through her lighting designs. Beginning her career as a jewelry designer, that lasting impression of faceted gems and the play of light, coupled with the simplicity of form yet function, follow her to this day. Her technical knowledge of lighting, combined with her innate creative abilities, results in fixtures that not only make a personal statement but adds layers of light working to create welcoming ambience.

Educated in Fine Art, Tracy has been designing lighting fixtures and home accessories for over 14 years. Her work has been featured in numerous Lighting Industry Trade Magazines as well as Interior Design publications.

A curtain of multi-faceted crystals beautifully cascade to create the stunning effect of refracted light found in the Palais collection. Traditional refinement with modern style, this innovative design finished in a warm Silver Leaf offers an extraordinary lighting effect in both contemporary and time-honored spaces.

Elena Carolina Lares

While studying Industrial Design, she created many concepts and all of them were perfectly executed and obtained the highest grades of her class.

She then decided to continue her education in Interior Design. She became one of the most outstanding students of her class and was selected to participate in design student competitions where she won her first design award. While at school, she worked for several interior design firms as a freelancer.

Her products have targeted all markets, including High end retailers. She has created stunning trend setter designs that have stayed in the market for more than 10 years. These designs have received numerous recognitions and awards

This collection was inspired by the glass reflection and light sparks visible on the modern skyscraper. Its vertical approach is designed to carry the architectural concept used on modern high rise buildings, combined with crystal pieces used by traditional chandeliers, creates a transitional collection that fits into a modern environment, as well as, in transitional interior decoration. The streamlined polish chrome, the dramatic hanging crystals and the powerful optic glass drum shades redefines classic modern style.
